Lehotay is academic All-America

Walsh University runner Andra Lehotay has been named a first team NCAA Division II Academic All-American by the College Sports Information Directors of America. Lehotay is the only women's track and cross country runner from the Great Midwest Athletic Conference on this year's team. She is the Walsh program's first Academic All-American since 2018 when Kaitlyn Barber and Sarah Berger earned first team honors. In her final cross country season last fall, Lehotay helped the Cavaliers to a program-best 10th-place finish at the Division II national meet. The All-G-MAC and All-Midwest Region selection finished 41st overall, just one-tenth of a second off All-American status. Lehotay qualified for the Division II indoor track and field national meet in three events and was scheduled to race in the 800-meter run and on the distance medley relay. She won three conference titles and was named G-MAC Female Track Athlete of the Championship Meet and the Year. She ended her Walsh career as a 10-time All-American. A Sandy Valley High School graduate, Lehotay finished the fall semester with a 4.0 GPA and has a 3.99 cumulative GPA for her undergrad career. The government-foreign affairs major will attend law school at Northeastern on a full scholarship this fall.

Five withdraw from Travelers

Brooks Koepka and Webb Simpson were among five players who withdrew from the Travelers Championship, four of them out of a chain-reaction abundance of caution over the coronavirus that put the PGA Tour on notice. "The snowball is getting a little bit bigger," Graeme McDowell told The Associated Press after withdrawing Wednesday because his longtime caddie, Ken Comboy, tested positive for the virus. The tour released results that showed three positive tests at the TPC River Highlands in Connecticut — Cameron Champ and the caddies for Koepka and McDowell. There were no positive tests on the Korn Ferry Tour event in Utah. As it enters the third week in its return from the COVID-19 pandemic that shut down golf for three months, the tour has administered 2,757 tests at PGA Tour and Korn Ferry Tour events in five states, with seven positive results. On the PGA Tour alone, there have been 1,382 tests and four positive results. "It's a low number on a percentage basis, but every number hurts," PGA Tour Commissioner Jay Monahan said. "I think we all need to remind ourselves that we're all learning to live with this virus. "It's pretty clear that this virus isn't going anywhere." Nick Watney was the first player to test positive last week at the RBC Heritage in Hilton Head Island, South Carolina, which was teeming with people on summer vacation. Champ tested positive on Tuesday at the Travelers and immediately withdrew. Four more players withdrew even with negative test results. Koepka said his caddie, Ricky Elliott, tested positive and then took another test that came back negative. No matter. He chose to withdraw, and was especially gutted that his younger brother, Chase Koepka, withdrew after earning a rare chance to play through a Monday qualifier. When his brother made it, Koepka arranged a house for him to stay in starting Tuesday, so he had his brother stay with him in the meantime. Then, the brothers played a practice round with McDowell and British Open champion Shane Lowry. Both Koepkas said they felt they should withdraw because they were in close contact with someone who tested positive. Simpson withdrew when he learned a family member had tested positive.
